

Case Reference 1931

June 30 2015

REPORT FROM: Agent Yanlow
FOR: Division 66
AREA OF OPERATIONS: China
SUBJECT: Massacre in Shanghai

Case Background:

Last night in Shanghai, a mysterious fire broke out during a religious ceremony killing 23 people, including several monks. My contact reported that heavy lacerations were identified on the bodies. At the ceremony, a number of "hell bank notes" were found completely untouched and confiscated as potentially dangerous material. The client has acquired the notes and asked that they be neutralized immediately. They are being sent to dispatch in a secure package for further analysis.

Analyst Instructions:

My contact warned of a curse and said that a malicious entity may be contained within the notes. She suggested the notes must be scattered around the globe and banished in a special ceremony. The notes must be handled with care and analysed immediately. I am requesting HQ to utilize the global agent network to handle the physical evidence files. Take precautions that the package is not intercepted en route and that great care is taken to ensure that the contents are not lost.
