

26 July 2015

Case reference: LI9S2W

TRANSCRIPT OF CONVERSATION WITH VANESSA BAUP [Subject LI9S2W]

The following is a transcript of the conversation between Vanessa Baup [Subject LI9S2W] and AGENT STIER, one of her escorts for the voyage by plane between LONDON and ORLANDO, FL, USA on 07/25/15

██████: AGENT STIER: You're shaking.

BAUP: Yeah.

AGENT STIER: Can I get you anything?

BAUP: I'm just a nervous flyer.

AGENT STIER: Take one of these. It'll help you relax.

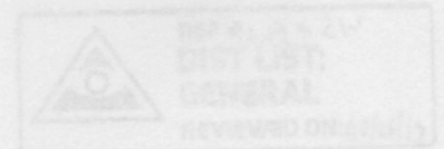

BAUP: No, thanks.

AGENT STIER: You're sure?

BAUP: I'm grateful for everything the agency has done for me, but I'm going to hold off on swallowing any pills.

AGENT STIER: It's Xanax.

BAUP: I'll be okay.

Note from AGENT STIER: Shortly after our conversation, the subject's hands began to shake violently. The plane began to hum strangely, and the noise seemed to increase as the subject's breathing quickened. I prepared to discreetly administer a tranquilizer, but her panic started to dissipate. Within another ten minutes, the subject seemed to have stabilized.

██████: BAUP: Do you know where they'll keep me?

AGENT STIER: Somewhere safe.

The follow BAUP: A cell is safe.

AGENT STIER: It won't be a cell. You'll be comfortable.

BAUP: How can you have so much faith in such a huge agency. You have no idea what they'll do to me. Do you even know why you're escorting me?

AGENT STIER: We've been briefed.

BAUP: And you're sure you got the whole story?

AGENT STIER: I'm sure I didn't.

BAUP: You didn't. By the way, what happened to your hand?

AGENT STIER: That's what happens when you fall into enemy hands.

BAUP: How you fall doesn't matter. It's how you land.

AGENT STIER: Right. Are you any better with landings?

BAUP: No, not really.

Note from AGENT STIER: Contrary to the subject's statement, she seemed to be much calmer during our landing. Arriving in Orlando, FL, USA, AGENT PASCAL and I escorted Subject LI9S2W to ██████████ and met with AGENT MARSHALL and AGENT HUTCHINGS. Subject is now under their protection.

